ROYALTY IS BARRED FROM PRIZE FIGHTS

LTHOUGH Edward VII. witnessed many a boxing contest and his prime as adept a boxer as his trother in-law. King George of Greece, was a wrestler, many years have clapsed to publicly attend a prize fash, many thich it seems timely to recall in connection with the encounter of Jeffries and Johnson at Reno to-mortow.

The last occasion of this kind of which there is any record was in 1855, when William IV., while still Duke of Clarence, arrived quite late at a dinner given by his brother, the Frince Regent, at the pavilion at Brighton, owing to his having been detained at a prize fight near Hove between John Gully and the Came Chicken, a fight fought with bare flasts, and which proved an extremely sight in which lad word in betting the relief from the ring, and having acquired a fortune as a book. maker, entered Parliament. As such he waz wont to attend the ever made any reference to the money which he had won in betting on him in that prize fight at Hove, more than a quarter of a century previously, John Gulley's grandson, William Gully, also the House of Curds last week, on the House of Curds last week, on Sir Christopher Furness's elevation to the House of Lords last week, on the occasion of the official celebration of King George's birthday, marks the settlement of a rather unsavory Equabble with the present Liberal administration and at the same time sheds an instructive light on the manner in which peerages are obtained. Sir Christopher, who is a multimillionaire shipbuilder and shipowher at Hull, had until last fall always been one of the financial mainstays of the Liberal party, and perhaps the largest squabble with the present Liberal administration and at the same time sheds an instructive light on the manner in which peerages are obtained. Sir Christopher, who is a multimillionaire shipbulider and shipowner at Hull, had until last fall always been one of the financial mainstays of the Liberal party, and perhaps the largest contributor to the party funds, his annual subscriptions averaging $100. In return for his generosity annual subscriptions averaging $100 and the financial mainstays of the Liberal party, and perhaps the largest contributor to the party funds, his annual subscriptions averaging $100 and the following day his utterances figured quite alone in the American pressoner in the subject before Parliament, namely, the relations between the two great English-speaking countries, and he acquired thereby a reputation for statesmanship and a prestige on this side of the water which was in no sense of the word warranted by his political standing in England.

When in the fulness of time, after holding the minor offices of Postmasterion to the House of Commons in the following day his utterances figured quite alone in the American pressoner. The subject before Parliament, and thus it was that on the following day his utterances figured quite alone in the American pressoner in the subject before Parliament, the graph of the wires, and thus it was that on the following day his utterances figured quite alone in the American pressoner in the subject before Parliament, namely, the relations between the two great English-speaking countries, and he acquired thereby a reputation for statesmanship and a prestige on this side of the water which was in no sense of the word warranted by his political standing. constituency which he represented in Parliament.

The Cabinet offered him a baronetcy, but he would not hear of it, and when on the occasion of the official celebration of King Edward's birthday last June he again found that his name was not on the list of the new peers he declined any further subscriptions to the fund of the Liberal party and declared that he had given up all further in the House of Lord, and consequently placed upon the market all the estates in Wiltshire which were to have formed the entailed property of the peerage which he had counted upon possessing. (The lands in question, which comprised no less than five villages, formerly belonged to Lord Ashburton, of the house of Eurton, who has married Frances Donnelly, and American actress and were sold by him to his bushness associate, E. Terah Hooley, the now bankrupt promoter, on whose ruin they were bought by Sir Christopher.) For in Great Britain the Lesse of victorious solders and of civil oblessed, blessed southwest train: Oblessed of victorious solders and of civil of blessed, blessed southwest train: Oblessed blessed southwest train: Oblessed blessed southwest train: Oblessed blessed southwest train: whose ruin they were bought by Sir Christopher.) For in Great Britain the bestowal of a peerage, save in the case of victorious soldiers and of civil servants of the crown, is restricted to men who possess a certain income derived from the ownership of land, the idea being that land alone, in the idea being that land in the idea being that land in the idea being the id House of Commons at the last general election, yet he was persuaded to resume his subscriptions to the Liberal party fund and to withdraw the offer for the sale of his landed estates. Now he has received his reward in the shape of the long-deferred peerage.

No such becuniary motives, however, have led the Liberal government to bestow a peerage upon Sir Walter Foster, who can heast of having been the second physician to be made a lord and the first medical man in Great Britain to become a minister of the frown, having held the office of parallamentary secretary of the local government board, and de facto Minister of Public Health in the Gladstone administration of the last decade of the bilderenth century. In fact, it was nwing to the radical measures which he inaugurated in 1852 and 1853 that the epidemic of cholera which swelf over Europe in those two years was Airtually excluded from Great Britain where, in lieu of the customary tribute of tens of thousands of lives only 155 cases proved fatal. He has been in Frailment for the last quarter of a century, first for Chester, then for the county of Derby, and as chairman of the National Liberal Federation for prevention for prevention for the sound of the provided the policy of the sound of the subtrops in the subtrops of the subtrops in the near future.

"Oh blessed drums of Aldershot!
Oh blessed, blessed southwest train!
Oh blessed, blessed Speaker's clock!
